ABSTRACT Today's scenario demands corporate to be responsible not only towards its stakeholders but also towards the society in which it operates. Every decision the business person makes and every action he or she will do has social implication. Business organisations should voluntarily take an initiative for better society through Corporate Social Responsibility. The contribution of business should not affect the environment in any manner.

To make this paper more effective we will be concentrating on some of the business organisations in Mangalore. Here the emphasis will be on the contribution of Corporate Social Responsibility towards inclusive growth and evaluation will be done on the basis of their contributions.

KEYWORDS : CSR, better society, inclusive growth

1. INTRODUCTION

"The relationship between business and society is like the relationship between a ship and the sea which engirds it and carries it, which threatens it with storm and shipwreck which has to be crossed but which is yet alien and distant the environment rather than the home of the ship. But society is not just the envionment of the business enterprise. Even the most private of private enterprise is an organ of society and serves a social function" - PETER DRUCKER

At present, more and more innovation is taking place continuously in business organisations. Therefore, to be successful they have to implement certain changes for their survival and growth. Business organisations are implementing their Corporate Social Responsibility initiatives according to their vision and mission. Inclusive growth provides equality of opportunity, empowering people through education and skill development and helps in reducing poverty. It creates environment friendly growth. Corporate social Responsibility is important to profitability and help to boost the employee morale in the organisation.

2.0 Literature Review

Agarwal (2014) uses Indian examples case studies and Corporate social Responsibility role models from the Indian industry to explain the gap between Indian business needs and current practices. Here, he tries to explain how even Corporate social Responsibility can be used as a marketing tool and for business benefits.

Mitra (2016) emphasised on a comprehensive overview of Corporate social Responsibility in Indian corporations following the 2013 legal mandate on Corporate spending of profits for Corporate social Responsibility. India is likely to become the birthplace of social, economic and environmental transformation through financial investments in Corporate social Responsibility. It helps to reveal the various layers of Corporate social Responsibility in an emerging economy like India.

Khanka (2014) stressed that society and business have been coeval since time immemorial. They have been inter-related and interdependent for their survival and growth. Business runs with the support and co-operation from the society. Therefore, it becomes the responsibility of business towards the society to reciprocate by adding welfare to the society.
