Corporate Social Responsibility: An Indian Perspective

*Dr. Mohd Ashraf Ali  Azam Malik

* Associate Professor-Department of Commerce-Aligarh Muslim University-Aligarh, UP-India.

 Research Scholar –Department of Commerce-Aligarh Muslim University-Aligarh, UP-India.

ABSTRACT

Today, we are living in the era in which companies, businesses and society are more connected and interactive than ever before in the past. Corporations are more aware of their role towards the society. They are responsible bodies that feel a sense duty towards commonwealth and the environment that comes with a growing realization that they, as an integral part of this society themselves, can contribute to its upliftment and empower of the entire country in turn. And consumers and citizens’ campaigns can make all the difference. This is the foundation thought behind the golden handshake between tripartite—companies, society and nation; Corporate Social Responsibility or CSR. CSR is a crucial bridge between organizations and society and also a means to create awareness amongst corporates, NGOs, civic bodies and government of the value and importance of social responsibility to bridge the gap between the privileged and the dispossessed of society. It facilitates and creates the environment for true good partnership between civil society and business. More and more companies and organizations are creating an interface to encourage industry commerce and globalization that can, in turn, improve the bottom line by social good. More importantly, CSR is the point of convergence of various initiatives aimed at ensuring socio-economic development of the community which would be livelihood oriented as a whole in a credible and sustainable manner. There does seem to be a glimmer of hope from the rapidly growing field of CSR and from the greater involvement of companies in providing private funds for relief. CSR issues are attracting a great deal of attention in the developed world, there is a need for more research into CSR in the developing world. This paper considers the CSR practices of a small sample of multinational corporations (MNCs) and local firms in India to better understand the perspectives and trends in India.

Introduction

Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) is the soul of every business these days. It has also become the password to not only overcome competition but to ensure sustainable growth. It has been supported not only by the stakeholders but shareholders by and large encompassing the whole community. CSR in truth is the alignment of business operations with social values. It takes into account the interests of stakeholders in the company’s business policies and actions. It focuses on the social, environmental, and financial success of a company - the so-called triple bottom line - with the aim to achieve social development while achieving business success. Social Responsibility of business refers to what business does over and above the statutory requirement for the benefit of the society. The word “responsibility” emphasizes that the business has some moral obligations towards the society. The term corporate citizenship is also commonly used to refer to the moral obligations of the business towards the society. It implies that like individuals, corporate are also the part of the society and their behavior shall be guided by the social norms.

Social Responsibility has been defined by Davis as follows: “Social responsibilities refer to businessman’s decision and actions taken to reason at least partially beyond the firm’s direct economic or technical interest.”

Objectives of the study:

- To explore the various definitions and descriptions of Corporate Social Responsibility,
- To study the theoretical concepts and Phases,
- To elaborate upon development of CSR in Indian companies,
- To study the deployment of current CSR practices in Indian companies.

Definition of Corporate Social Responsibility

It would be interesting to derive a meaning of the concept with the dissection of each of the words. CSR is not a difficult concept and can be explained as:-

- Corporate – means organized business
- Social – means everything dealing with people, the society at large;
- Responsibility – means accountability between the two.

From the above, CSR could be defined as the process of business operations carried out while ensuring compliance with legal requirements, as also linked to ethical values, to an extent. ‘CSR means open and transparent business practices that are based on ethical values and respect for employees, communities and the environment. It is designed to deliver sustainable value to the society at large as well as to the shareholders.

The Four Phases of CSR Development in India

The history of CSR in India has its four phases which run parallel to India’s historical development and has resulted in different approaches towards CSR. However the phases are not static and the features of each phase may overlap other phases.

The First Phase

In the first phase charity and philanthropy were the main drivers of CSR. Culture, religion, family values and tradition and industrialization had an influential effect on CSR. In the pre-industrialization period which lasted till 1850, wealthy merchants shared a part of their wealth with the wider society by way of setting up temples for a religious cause. Moreover these merchants helped the society in getting over phases of famine and epidemics by providing food from their godowns.
Corporate Social Responsibility in India

A number of recent surveys have been conducted in India to understand what Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) means in the Indian context, what the expectations of different stakeholders are and the drivers and barriers facing companies. It traces back the history of CSR in India and suggests that there are four models.

1. Ethical Model by Mahatma Gandhi: The ‘ethical model’ as suggested by Mahatma Gandhi, where companies voluntarily committed to public welfare and participated in nation building.

2. Statist Model by Jawaharlal Nehru: Then followed the ‘statist model’ post India’s independence propounded by Jawaharlal Nehru. This model calls for state ownership and legal requirements of CSR.

3. Liberal Model by Milton Friedman: ‘The liberal model’ by Milton Friedman talks about CSR being limited to private owners or shareholders.

4. Stakeholders Model by R. Edward Freeman: And the latest is the ‘stakeholders model’ proposed by R. Edward Freeman, which calls for companies to respond to all stakeholders needs.

All these four models co-exist in India today. One of the weaknesses of the current system is that the agenda is set by the industrialized world with little understanding of the diversity of approaches and track record in other parts of the world. Some of the main findings are:

a) Environmental pollution was regarded with great concern by all groups.

b) The main expectation of the companies by the public was that they provide good quality products at low prices, treat employees well without discrimination, protect the environment, help bridge the gap between the rich and the poor, and help in social and economic development.

CSR initiatives in India: A Study of selected Companies

Tata Steel

Tata Steel’s Corporate Social Responsibility Policy, its Managing Director, Mr. B. Muthuraman, said; “Tata Steel believes that the primary purpose of a business is to improve the quality of life of people. Tata Steel will volunteer its resources, to the extent it can reasonably afford, to sustain and improve the quality of life of the people of the areas in which it operates”.

Tata Steel’s commitment to its corporate social responsibility (CSR) also finds reflection in its adoption of the Corporate Citizenship Index, Tata Business Excellence Model and the Tata Index for Sustainable Development. Tata Steel spends 5-7 per cent of its profit after tax on several CSR initiatives. Broadly speaking, the company’s CSR initiatives are spread across three core areas - employee welfare, the environment and the welfare of the community at large. Under this broad spectrum, diverse areas are covered. These include environment management, economic development, employee relations, civic amenities and community services, healthcare, sports and adventure, relief during natural calamities, education, arts and culture and social welfare.

Infosys Technologies Limited

Infosys is actively involved in various community development programs. Infosys promoted, in 1996, the Infosys Foundation as a not-for-profit trust to which it contributes up to 1% PAT every year. Additionally, the Education and Research Department (E&R) at Infosys also works with employee volunteers on community development projects. Infosys leadership has set examples in the area of corporate citizenship and has involved itself actively in key national bodies. They have taken initiatives to work in the areas of Research and Education, Community Service, Rural Reach Programme, Employment, Welfare activities undertaken by the Infosys Foundation, Healthcare for the poor, Education and Arts & Culture.

ITC Limited

ITC partnered the Indian farmer for close to a century. ITC is now engaged in elevating this partnership to a new paradigm.
by leveraging information technology through its trailblazing ‘e-Choupal’ initiative. ITC is significantly widening its farmer partnerships to embrace a host of value-adding activities: creating livelihoods by helping poor tribal make their wastelands productive; investing in rainwater harvesting to bring much-needed irrigation to parched drylands; empowering rural women by helping them evolve into entrepreneurs; and providing infrastructural support to make schools exciting for village children. Through these rural partnerships, ITC touches the lives of nearly 3 million villagers across India.

Mahindra & Mahindra
The K. C. Mahindra Education Trust was established in 1953 by late Mr. K. C. Mahindra with an objective to promote education. Its vision is to transform the lives of people in India through education, financial assistance and recognition to them, across age groups and across income strata. The K. C. Mahindra Education Trust undertakes number of education initiatives, which make a difference to the lives of deserving students. The Trust has provided more than Rs. 7.5 Crore in the form of grants, scholarships and loans. It promotes education mainly by the way of scholarships. The Nanhi Kali project has over 3,300 children under it. We aim to increase the number of Nanhi Kalis (children) to 10,000 in the next 2 years, by reaching out to the underprivileged children especially in rural areas.

Tata Consultancy Services
The Adult Literacy Program (ALP) was conceived and set up by Dr. F C Kohli along with Prof. P N Murthy and Prof. Kesav Nori of Tata Consultancy Services in May 2000 to address the problem of illiteracy. ALP believes illiteracy is a major social concern affecting a third of the Indian population comprising old and young adults. To accelerate the rate of learning, it uses a TCS-designed Computer–Based Functional Literacy Method (CBFL), an innovative teaching strategy that uses multimedia software to teach adults to read within about 40 learning hours.

Concluding Remarks
Business houses all over the world are increasing in realizing their stake in the society and engaging in various social and environmental activities. CSR holds a very important place in the development scenario of the world today and can pose as an alternative tool for sustainable development. As companies have shown great concerns for their immediate community and the stakeholders, it can be safely concluded that much of the fate of society lies in the hands of the corporate. A successfully implemented CSR strategy calls for aligning these initiatives with business objectives and corporate responsibility across the business principles to make CSR sharper, smarter, and focused on what really matters. There are several companies in India involved in diverse issues such as healthcare, education, rural development, sanitation, microcredit, and women empowerment. Analysis of several surveys in India suggest that though many companies in India have taken on board the universal language of CSR, CSR seems to be in a confused state. Individual companies define CSR in their own limited ways and contexts. The shrinking role of government in implementing the CSR is properly needed, demands for greater disclosure to stakeholders, including customers, suppliers, employees, communities, investors, and activist organizations.

REFERENCES